AWARENESS CAMPAIGN- SAVE ENVIRONMENT: SAVE BIODIVERSITY.

On June 6th, the Biodiversity club in association with Department of Botany observed World Environment Day by organizing a dynamic awareness campaign across diverse social media platforms, centering around the compelling theme, "Save Environment: Save Biodiversity." Students took the digital stage, sharing impactful videos and images to illuminate the public about the imminent risks confronting biodiversity, including habitat fragmentation and species extinction.

This concerted effort served as a powerful communication tool, effectively conveying the urgent need for biodiversity conservation to society at large. Through the lens of our collective outreach, we aimed not just to raise awareness but to inspire actionable steps towards safeguarding the delicate balance of our planet's rich and diverse ecosystems.

Enumeration and identification of trees in the campus was another effort carried out by the club members during the year. Identification of herbaceous plants of the campus was done as part of the project work by 24 students.
